

Princely Desires

Idea

The draconian prince has many unusual desires, the rumours of which have swept like wildfire through the city shortly after he came of age. Being the nature of the place, exploring one's sexuality is hardly frowned upon with the priests being the biggest advocates of sensual pleasure. However, some like their pleasure to be a little more on the secretive side... All on their terms.

Leading on from this, the prince was and can be frequently seen enjoying physical pleasure in brothels, with servants, the priests where he is requested to be present for their ceremonies and initiations and anyone else that takes his fancy. When he demands a guard come to his chambers, no one suspects anything out of the ordinary as it is not uncommon for him to request an escort out into the city on his jaunts.

The guard is in for a surprise, however, as the prince does not wish to go out that night – or not quite as thought. When the guard enters the prince's abode, he is greeted by two princes, both identical. One walks by him with a smirk and flick of his tail, commenting that one of the other guards will have to do to accompany him out into the city if he is unavailable. The other prince explains that he sends one of the guards, transfigured into his likeness, out in his stead when he wants to enjoy erotic pleasures, for his interests differ from the public face that he wishes to portray.

The prince seduces the shocked guard, plying him with wine, mead, sweet fruits and the finest cuts of meat. He is amenable to the advances – it is, after all, a city where much of life is erotic and he assumes he is off duty if he was been asked to the prince's chambers. Few could claim that they haven't been eyeing up the prince from afar, regardless of what they may say when the wider world is in the near vicinity. When he is lured to the bedchamber, he expects to be the one on his knees, but the prince disrobes and lifts his tail for the guard instead with a sultry look.

The guard, unable to believe his fortune, takes the prince tenderly, but is quickly encouraged into a rougher burst of passion. They explore each other's bodies, but, as he approaches climax, things begin to change. (It is all part of the prince's ever developing plan to ensure he can continue his pleasures as he wills.) The guard transforms as he fucks the prince into the spitting image of the prince himself, becoming indistinguishable as even his cock changes. They orgasm – he is unable to stop himself despite his shock – and the dual princes revel in a powerful release.

Panting in the afterglow, the prince sprawls out, bouncing a little vial in his hand. The guard barely has time to wonder where it came from.

End:

“Send in Jerome, would you? He does look like he might have something delightful to offer.”

He smiled, his eyes narrowing at the corners. The guard swallowed. He knew that look. That was a look that had his hackles raising, reaching for a weapon on a hip that was all too bare, devoid of the comforting sheath of a sword.

“And let’s just keep this our little secret,” he added, as if there was any real need to clarify his wishes. “I wouldn’t want to have to send you the same way as the others before you.”

Looking up at the dragon who he had become the mimic of in every way, Lonan knew there was only answer he would have ever wanted to give. Prostrating himself before the prince, he pressed his forehead to the dragon’s feet.

“I am yours to command, my prince.”
