

Lust

Written by Amethyst Mare (Arian Mabe)

The raven sprawled in her chambers atop a pile of plush cushions. The flickering warmth of the fire tickled her feathers and she moaned, though not from any sense of relaxation. In the frigid winter of Sweden, she had her harem to warm her and keep the chill from her feathers, regardless of the spacious castle that she called her own. As she was serviced sexually, the remainder of her extensive harem fetched her drinks and sweet fruits to maintain her energy levels, massaging her body and leaving trails of kisses wherever their lips touched. Living in the lap of luxury, she hissed and arched as they rocked her body into yet another orgasm. With land to her name and the riches of the flesh at her fingertips, the lusty raven could not want for more.

The fire roared.

Oh, but she craved more. Her eyes roamed the wall hangings, extravagant tapestries in all colours of the rainbow, as a finely groomed fox grasped her thighs, thrusting into her with wild abandon. His eyes were half-closed and his tongue all but hung from his muzzle in feral delight. The runes on the raven's abdomen glowed blue as he reached climax, filling her cunt with a pitiful amount of seed, and the raven groaned, clacking the edges of her beak together. Where was the rest of it? As he finished his task, he slumped to side, dazed, while a dainty stallion took his place, position his cock to for that first thrust.

“Enough!”

Lucidium leapt to her feet, sending her partners tumbling to the cushions. Could they not see that they were not enough? They stared up at her suddenly towering form in confusion, shrinking back. The bay equine, bolder than the rest, stretched out his paw to her, an offering in his eyes. She ignored it, sliding her gaze away. It was useless, all of them useless for her needs.

The curse would be the end of her.

Swearing under her breath, she stormed from the room, feathers fluffed up against the sudden chill. Without her harem, the castle was larger, lonelier, than before. She had someplace to be, so she steeled herself to the bitter wind and lunged from the castle at a half-run, wind whipping snow into her eyes.

Her goal resided in the looming shadow of the stables, where her horses were housed. The stable hands had long retreated to their homes and families, so she found herself alone as she pushed open the wooden door and eased herself inside, shivering away from the cold.

Friendly whickers greeted her and her gaze hardened. There was no time for sweetness and sugar cubes. She was there for a purpose that only they could fulfil. And ‘fill’ they would.

Stomping, Lucidium unlatched the first stable door, one housing a great Shire, and threw it wide, immediately moving on to the next and repeating the motion.

“Out! Out! All of you, out!”

She released only the stallions, letting them mill into the wide central aisle. Lucidium quivered, for a moment doubting her decision to let them loose around her heat-addled body, but the thought was swiftly chased away by need and the glowing of the runes. No, it had to be done. The raven flung herself bodily on the hay bales at the end of the stable, stacked for use the next day: now they would find a different use, for the time being at least.

Clip-clopping back and forth, the horses milled about one another, brown eyes curious as they inhaled sharply, flared nostrils taking in the array of scents. Lucidium spread her legs wide, holding on to her thighs to allow thick globules of cum to ooze from her used pussy, still as tight as ever. The closest horse, a heavy-set draft, raised his head curiously.

“You know what I want,” she told them, though they had no intelligence with which to discern her words.

Their bodies, on the other hand, responded to the scent of cum and ever present hormones of a female deep in heat. Flaked out on top of the hay bales, it was a matter of seconds before a bay Clydesdale with a black mane spilling over the arch of his neck mounted her, snorting heavily into her face. His cock jerked, bouncing against his belly, and he groaned as he searched out her entrance, shoving the fat, flat head into her folds until it caught, sinking in deep.

“Fuck yes!”

Lucidium screeched, fingers curling around the horse’s thick forelegs as if to hold herself in place, though the cock rammed in her pussy more than did that. The Clydesdale whinnied shrilly and bucked forward, resting heavily on his forelegs as he gripped the bale much like he would the sides of a four-legged mare. Pussy dripping with cum from earlier partners, no lubrication was needed for him to slide slickly in to the hilt, pushing the medial ring into her tight pussy. That was one effect of the curse – no matter how many times she fucked, Lucidium would always be as tight as a virgin, forever craving seed, the more fertile the better.

What better than a stallion?

Horses were not known for their endurance and Lucidium clung on as the Clydesdale huffed and thrust, ramming in to her so that the head of his cock bottomed out against her cervix with every thrust. It was physically impossible for him to go any deeper and she reached down with a moan to feel the outline of his cock pushing through her lower abdomen, deliciously full. It would have been fatal to any other fur but it was her that got to experience such delights!

Cramming every inch of his dick into her tight snatch, the equine neighed as he ejaculated, balls slapping into Lucidium and pumping her full of cum. Her stomach visibly swelled with the sheer volume of it and, as he dismounted, still spurting creamy ropes of virility, cock bouncing, she knew that it was just the beginning of what she so desperately needed.

“More,” she begged, but the other stallions were already nipping and kicking out, establishing the pecking order of the bachelor herd and who would get to fuck their new ‘mare’ next.

A black Shire horse with a blaze slashed across his face was next in line, the largest of the herd. Lucidium clacked her beak anxiously, watching his cock drooling pre cum in a long string down to the ground, contracting to slap against his belly. He was an emblem of masculinity. Huffing softly over her sex, he took a quick lick of cum and feminine juices streaming from her, curling back his upper lip to take in the scents. Lucidium whimpered.

He mounted her with a snort and wasted no time in wedging his cock into her, the greater girth stretching her to her limits – wider than even she thought was possible. Arching, Lucidium cried out as orgasm overcame her, twitching as she lost control of her muscles and the equine above thrust and bucked to his heart's content, using her body as no more than a simple breeding tool. That's all she was to them: a hot cunt to be filled and impregnated.

The Shire horse panted as he rammed in, using the weight and sheer power of his body to slam into the much smaller raven, pounding her into the hay bales. She feared that they would not hold under his force but, somehow, they held, and she flung her arms back, subjecting herself to his will and breeding. Each stroke made her keen in pleasure and she twisted on the bales, beak parted for breath that her nares could not supply. She could barely draw a full breath before the bulk of the stallion forced it from her lungs once more, dominating her as he would one of his own kind.

He snorted and arched his neck down to nip at the bare curve of her throat, eliciting a gasp. His thrusts drove her to the peak of pleasure and Lucidium closed her eyes tightly as she climaxed, the first satisfying one of the night – for days, even. Her whole body shook as if overcome by a greater force and her pussy convulsed around the equine's shaft, milking him until he gave a masculine nicker and spent his seed in her passage. The sheer volume of cum was forced out around his shaft, oozing viscously down her thighs and the bales. Her belly swelled, bulging out obscenely. She could not be impregnated by the horses but her body told her that she needed more, that she needed to 'take'.

Hips jerking in comparatively feeble thrusts, he groaned, balls pulling in to his body to expel jets of cum from his cock. Panting in the glow of hers, Lucidium hissed softly, not expecting him to cum for such a length of time. It was a true testament to the virility of stallions. Disinterested, now that he had had his fill, the Shire horse dismounted from the temporary mare, his cock drooping down towards the ground in a soft arc.

It was not enough, the raven needed more. Always more, even with the stallions. Her curse was to never be sated. Looking desperately for the next horse, Lucidium raised her hips, spreading her pussy lips invitingly with both paws. Did she not just look delectable?

Certainly the other stallions thought so as they lashed out, eager to be the next to take the mare – the pecking order had not stuck for more than a single round with such a fertile female in their midst, at least to their senses. Lucidium had a few seconds in which to roll over on to her stomach, legs dangling off the bale so that her knees pressed into its scratchy softness before the pride of her stable trotted up, a red Suffolk Punch. He huffed, scenting her sex and need with an arrogant toss of his head. The stallion's cock slipped languidly from its sheath, mottled pink and brown in its enormity. Lucidium licked her beak, heavy belly squashed beneath her. The dribbles of cum were nothing but extra from the stallions – every drop deposited into her womb was sealed within, simply to heighten her lust and demonstrate her position.

The stallion's forelegs landed heavily on either side of her and she arched back, fanning her tail feathers up for him to find her entrance with nothing denying him. He soon found her wet folds and his cock bent lightly as he sought entrance, forcing it in after a few moments with a low grunt. And thus it began again, the cycle of being fucked, reaching orgasm and feeling sated for a short while, her belly sloshing and full of potent stallion seed.

As the chestnut stallion drove his fat cock into her, the raven used her forearms to push back, encouraging him harder and deeper, as much as she could take and more. Her body was a vessel for his pleasure and satisfaction in his orgasm, her pussy a perfectly fitted cock sleeve to his member. He rocked her towards a second orgasm, more explosive than the first, and, as the snow storm raged outside, Lucidium screeched at a piercing pitch. Being fucked was all she ever craved and all her wonderful, darling stallions would ever deliver.

The Suffolk Punch snorted, lips brushing the back of her feathered head, cock buried in her snatch as if trying to force himself deeper, into her very womb. She panted, trying to hold herself back for as long as possible and hold on to that pretence, that fragile hope, that somehow the curse did not have a complete hold over her, an iron clad grasp of her life. The stallions nickered, cocks slapping their underbellies, and she could not deny it, moaning like the slut with spread legs that she truly was.

It was going to be a long night. And many long nights after that too.