

Seduced in the Stables

He called to me.

The sinuous sway of his body as he lunged his youngster – a project horse, barely three years old – in the small arena. Nobody liked that arena. It was too small or cramped to set up cross poles, but it's circular shape and petite size made it perfect for anyone intent on lunging a horse or pony, perhaps to dissipate the fizz out of a particularly energetic steed before mounting up for a lesson. Joshua, used it to train his Thoroughbred, though in what discipline exactly he intended to move the mount into, I could not fathom for the frickin' life of me.

Hanging back in the shadows of my stable where my equine companion, a stunning Warmblood – home bred – with a white star in the middle of her bay forehead spent the majority of her days, when she was not turned out in the field. Her sides steamed gently from an earlier lesson and I patted her brown neck as my eyes wandered, a dirty blue curry comb dangling loosely from my other hand. Belle was groomed, warm and dry, but something in me kept me clinging to that damn brush as if it was the only thing anchoring me in reality while my eyes tracked the black-haired man pivoting in the centre of the arena. It didn't matter if anyone spotted my lapse in attention, however. They would say that was just something a ditsy blonde was apt to do, so I could get away with daydreaming from time to time, as long as I did not make a common habit of it in public.

Joshua turned up in the stables one day, unloaded his ex-racer in the middle of the yard and cheerfully waved off his evidently hired transport with a white flash of a grin. He'd only worn a grey t-shirt that did little to nothing to hide his physique, stretched taut over muscle right down to his looser jeans with a hole in one knee. Scuffed trainers completed his ensemble and I hadn't thought very much of him from the start, as blue as his eyes were. How odd to find someone with blue eyes when they had black hair

"I'm moving in Blue here," he shouted, voice carrying to where I stood outside Belle's stable, arms crossed over my clean, white blouse. "Nice to meet you!"

And that was that – it was as if he needed no more explanation that that to be there. Of course, I chased down the manager and demanded a reason for his presence. Why was he employed by our yard? Was he a trainer? He hadn't replaced Liam...had he? No one could replace gentle-handed Liam, no one. Could he work with Belle and me on our counter canter?

Hannah, in odd contrast, had not had time for my concerns. Our no-nonsense yard manager brushed me off with a smile and a wink and a promise that I would know all in good time. It had been all I could do to not stomp my foot like a petulant child – or perhaps Belle in one of her strops – and persist with questions that would not glean answers.

Why wouldn't anyone tell me anything?

My own investigations proved more worthwhile in working out the purpose of this strange newcomer to the yard, whose arrival begged question with no rhyme and reason. My concerns ended up unfounded as he showed himself to be a splendid trainer in practice and theory. Working full time on the yard, he took anyone and everyone on for private or group lessons, demonstrating his flexibility, and was just was keen to drag out the old chalk board to show exactly how a certain combination of jumps was to be tackled as he was to give clean, clear direction from the middle of the riding school.

It was a few months on that I paid greater attention to him outside of lessons. He liked to wear a white t-shirt to muck out the stables and it grew gradually more filthy over the course of the day. Straw clung to it like I ached to cling to him, encircling his neck with my arms and kissing up the hard line of his jaw. My fantasies crept upon me with the stealth of a fox stalking a rabbit, inch by tantalising inch, and, before I knew it, I was leaning against the wall of my horse's stable with my head in the clouds. Just what would it feel like to have him run his hands down my sides and rest them on my hips? Would he be gentle or rough? Or would he be one to be taken? One day, he came in with fresh stubble on his chin, having forgone the razor that morning, which was most unlike his usual, perfectly clean shaven, appearance. He had never looked sexier to me. I could have taken him right then and there, dragged him to the feed shed and begged him to fuck me against the wall. Any way would do. I no longer cared about the specifics of romance.

You could have said that I was head over heels with this new not-so-new-anymore trainer.

I tried to concentrate as I groomed Belle, struggling to lose myself in the rhythmic stroke of the body brush over her black coat. Working it to an all-over shine usually soothed my mind but my thoughts were racing too far away that day to be contained. I'd had an unexpected phone call the night before, taking me from my trusted toys, only for the bedroom, and an edge of climax as fine as the first bite of chocolate cake. The phone call had not been important, though my parents would've worried if I had not picked up the phone. At the time, it didn't seem worth the trouble to ignore it ringing.

Later, lying in a darkened room struggling to sleep as the hour ticked on, I regretted my decision. I wouldn't have been able to get myself off then either. A lady needed time to work herself up and four o'clock in the morning was not a suitable time to get the toys out in my flat. The neighbours would complain again and the first story – by way of explanation – had been hard enough to come up with. If I didn't take care of myself regularly, usually daily with what I was like, the need flared in the pit of my stomach, demanding attention when I could not provide.

Groaning, I pressed my thighs together and leaned forward over Belle's back, spreading my arms over her warmth. I wouldn't have any release that night either and the burning would rise to a crescendo within me. My luck was out and the ladies wanted me to go out for dinner with them. No doubt Janice would ramble on endlessly about her relationship troubles while I giggled and smiled politely, joining the others in reaffirming just how terrible a man her boyfriend was. I didn't know why she simply didn't leave him, if he was so bad, but some women liked to complain. I liked to daydream and it proved to be my downfall.

I twisted my fingers into my black mare's mane as my daydreams ran wild. In my mind's eye, I stepped back as Joshua approached, coyly making him work for it. We were in my flat, drinking red wine in the living room when he put down his glass and met my eyes, gaze smouldering. My heart leapt and I nipped my lip, blood roaring in my ears as the room swam about me. He took the glass from my hand and replaced its kiss on my lips with his own, mine parting to allow his tongue into my mouth. My hand landed on his chest, clad in a denim shirt, and traced a line down to his stomach as our tongues played between our mouths, one chasing the other and trading the playful attack.

I put the body brush down on Belle's back and rested my weight on her, one foot lifting up to tuck my tow behind the opposite ankle. The position pressed my thighs together around a sex that was becoming swiftly slicker with arousal and I played with the button on my skirt, contemplating sliding my hand inside. Eyes closed, my need was great and all I could think of was Joshua laying me back on the bed and pushing inside me, hands caressing and lips locking with mine as our bodies took pleasure from each other. Would anyone have to know?

"Off in your own world there, aren't you?"

And the daydream was dragged into glaring reality. I opened my eyes and audibly gasped to see Joshua standing framed in the entrance to the stable, half-door swung wide. I hadn't even heard him slide the bolt back. Had he called out to me? My cheeks burned and I was glad for the small protection of Belle's body between us to hide how I crossed one leg over the other, wetness soaking into my underwear. Sometimes the flow was so strong when I was fantasising that it had dampened my trousers.

I winced, too easily slipping back into my own mind. How long had Joshua been there?

"Uh..." I said, brilliantly.

He laughed and stepped completely into the stable, closing the door behind him. Although I knew it was only being closed to ensure Belle did not make an untimely escape, the prospect of being locked in with him made my heart pound most pleasurably. Clad in scuffed up jeans and his trademark white t-shirt, he was heartbreaking. His black hair stuck up in all directions – maybe he'd worn that baseball hat a bit earlier – and the heat of the summer afternoon darkened patches of sweat under his arms.

"You hardly look dressed for the stables." He raised an eyebrow. "Is there some new fashion going on here that I don't know about or something?"

I looked down at myself. A white tank top that only came down to my belly button and a pair of jean-shorts were all that covered my figure – not covering up very much at all in all honesty. The shorts were mostly hidden by a red and white check shirt tied loosely around my waist and half-slipping down as the hasty knot I'd made of the sleeves tugged slacker and slacker. I'd taken it off in grooming Belle so as not to coat it fibre to fibre in straw and scraps of horse hair. It hadn't made much of a difference though. My shoes weren't suitable for the stable either but not obscenely out of all possible notion, being a pair of black and white heels with a cork wedge that showed off my legs without being impossible to walk in.

"I'm going out," I snapped, a little too defensively. "Does there have to be questions about everything around here?"

Joshua raised an eyebrow and took a step closer, resting a hand on Belle's hindquarters. She flicked her tail, ever the lazy mare.

"Now, now. You've got more bite to you than a chestnut filly on her first grass."

I huffed and folded my arms across my chest.

“Just what is that supposed to mean?”

He walked around Belle, avoiding her swishing tail, and stood in front of me, drawing my eyes to the line of his chiselled jaw, so perfect that it could have been cut from granite, deserving the ruggedness of such. I took a step back, thighs pressed together and heart hammering. So close... Had he ever been so close to me before? Sweat clung cloyingly to his skin, mingled with the scent of oaken aftershave, the aroma of which had almost been depleted by the working day. I inhaled sharply and hoped he didn't notice my hands tremble as I folded them in front of my stomach, sucking it in as much as I could. Hopefully all those crunches and sit ups had done me good!

“It means,” he said slowly, deliberately, “that you are out at grass for the first time and don't want to be caught. You're too busy kicking your heels up in the air to notice the person at your gate with the head collar, waiting so patiently to slip it over your head.”

I gulped. Time slowed, a spider dropping from its web in the corner of the stable with the fat fly squirming in the midst of its web. Belle's stable needed a good de-cobwebbing. I was that fly. Joshua's eyes smouldered and I stepped away from him, tucking a strand of brown hair, so flyaway, behind my ear. Even with hairspray, it never wanted to stay in place.

“Anyway,” he continued. “Those shoes and clothes aren't suitable for the stables. What are you going to do if Belle steps on our foot? She's not a pony club ride. And shod.”

“I...”

I pursed my lips and looked away.

“What's it to you?”

His eyes widened.

“Excuse me?”

“You heard me?” My palms were sweaty but I ploughed on regardless. “Does it really matter to you if I'm wear so called proper stable attire or not? If you and the other stable hands could be trusted to look after my horse and keep her as I want, then maybe I wouldn't have to come along and tie up all your loose ends.”

Joshua rolled his eyes, not making any effort to hide his disdain for me, although there was a gleam there that I could not discern the meaning of. Our proximity made my heart thud all the harder, traitor adrenaline roaring in my ears. Belle, nonplussed, tugged hay from the hay bar in the corner of the stable, paying us no mind. She had better things to concern herself with.

Stepping closer, he tilted his head down to mine, pushing up my straw hat – I'd forgotten about that – so he could look me in the eye without any obstruction, or so I presumed. He could have no other reason for moving my hat out of the way...could he? Too stylish for the stables, now it made my guts twist. Maybe I shouldn't have worn it at all. Maybe he was right. But I was proud and it was far too late to back down.

“Tina.” He used my name for the first time and curled his fingers over my shoulders, playing them lightly into my shoulder blades. “I’m only concerned for you. I wouldn’t want you to get hurt.”

I snorted at that.

“You don’t even know me.”

“And you don’t know me either, yet you stare at me like you’ve watched me for years.”

My heart stopped. Or at least it felt like it did. It could have been beating so quickly that each beat melded into the next, making one impossible to discern from the other. His eyes locked on to mine, capturing me irrevocably. I hated him for it. And still I wanted him. Watching him was not a crime. I straightened, matching him look for look and setting my shoulders back. My painted lips curved into a smirk and I raised one eyebrow: so what? Let him know that I’d been looking. He should be chuffed to have my eyes on him and that fine arse of his.

Yet Joshua must have disagreed, for he turned his back to me and stepped out of the stable, breaking the tension between us into a thousand ugly pieces shattering at my inappropriately clad feet.

“I’m not a stable hand either,” he added, glancing back over his shoulder with a half-smile that did not reach his eyes. “I’m a trainer. Thought you’d like to know that.”

He closed the half-door at his heels and left with a whistle on his lips. I curled my hands into fists, steaming. How dare he! What was the deal with the semantics? Who cared what I titled his job? Growling, I threw my hands up in the air and immediately regretted the action as Belle snorted and tossed her head, eyes showing an edge of white, wondering what on earth her human was doing. I stroked her neck by way of apology and even mussed up my freshly painted nails by scratched down the arch of her neck to her withers just the way she liked it. Poor girl deserved it for the scare I’d given her. Thankfully, I was quickly forgiven.

It was a shame that I couldn’t say the same for other people. Letting myself out of her stable, I charged after Joshua as quickly as my wedges would let me. My knees jerked comically high as I ran, following his path into the barn – of course he’d be in the barn. If he wasn’t in the arena, he was in the barn. I’d watched him for long enough to know this but my cheeks still burned at being caught out. Damn him, damn him to hell and back again. If only so I could fuck him.

Whipping around the edge of the barn door, I almost flew off my feet and smack bang into the trainer in question on the other side of the double doors, coated in peeling red paint. He caught me as I thudded bodily into his chest, lips parted into an ‘O’ of surprise. For a moment, he stared at me, presumably too shocked to do anything but take stock of the situation. But there was nothing to take in, besides me. I was there as clear as day, lips twisted into a pout that would have broken a lesser heart.

Yeah, I thought, jabbing a finger into his chest. Bet you didn’t see that coming now, did you? I’m here, boy. Just for you. I licked my lips. Only for you.

“Hey! What are you playing at?”

“Excuse me?”

“Don’t play that game with me.” I poked his chest again for emphasis. Maybe he hadn’t gotten the message the first time. “You’ve been watching me as much as I’ve been watching you. Why is that?”

On the attack, I threw caution to the wind. I knew my hair was a mess, a rats nest around my face. I’d so carefully brushed the curls into place and now it had all gone to pot after all my trouble. There was a stone in my shoe and no time to scrape it out from where it dug into the soft underside of my foot. I was sure my mascara had streaked at the corners of my eyes too, what a bind. But I had to try. What did I have to lose? Well, besides my dignity. If it went terribly bad, I could always change yards. I resisted the urge to smile – I would have looked crazy. I kind of already did, but I’d heard men liked this kind of crazy.

“So...you’ve seen that too, have you?”

I couldn’t help but look surprised, eyebrows shooting up into my hairline.

“Yes...I have.” I ran with it, curling my fingers around the back of his neck, brushing his hair where it had been shaved off his neck. “In the barn, at the arena. You can’t keep your eyes off me either.” I fluttered my eyelashes, laying it on thick. “Is that such a bad thing?”

He leaned back, pulling me with him, and laughed, throwing his head back.

“Tina, you are a one, do you know that?”

“Oh, honey.” I exuded confidence, seizing the moment and ignoring the cold prickle of nervous sweat on my skin. “There is only one of me.”

I pulled his head to mine and pressed my lips to his, tongue flicking out to dart between his lips. Invading his mouth, I pressed the attack, breasts moulding to his hard chest. I ached to rip off his shirt and feel the muscles beneath in intimate detail. Would they feel even better under my tongue? Licking my way up each and every one of his abs until I reached his pecs, squeezing my lips around each nipple in turn. Would he squirm? Or would he push into my touch? Oh, how I ached to uncover the truth.

I dragged myself out of mental fantasy, realising that I was actually there, kissing this man, and he was even returning my kiss! His hand slipped down the curve of my back like it belonged there and cheekily dropped it lower, squeezing my arse. I moaned into the kiss, legs going weak at the knees. Oh, I liked a man who knew what he wanted. Some only needed a little encouragement from time to time.

“Isn’t this what you wanted?” I breathed, briefly breaking our kiss and arching my back to push my buttocks into his hand. “Don’t you want me?”

“I think that much...ah...is...”

He trailed off as he groaned, his hardness rising into my lower abdomen. I arched my lower body away and cupped his bulge in one hand, shivering deliciously. He’d fit inside me perfectly. I bit my lip, chancing another squeeze. I hadn't had a cock that big in me for... Well, it had been too long either way. And a woman had needs.

Joshua moaned and I kissed tenderly down his neck, catching skin ever so lightly with teeth.

"Shush. Don't think."

I could do the thinking for both of us. Taking his hand, I led him deeper into the barn to an empty stable, piled high with bales of straw as a temporary storage facility. It was good enough for the moment and, hey, anything was better to be fucked on than shavings. Those things scratched something fierce!

He parted his lips and I silenced him with a kiss, drawing him into the stable with my best coy look. Hopefully I wasn't cocking my head too much like a curious little canine.

"Hush, no need to talk."

I lay back on the rectangle of straw, bound with orange twine, and drew him to me. Lifting my legs up around his waist, I forced him against me, jean-clad crotch grinding over my pussy through my clothes. The fabric was thin but in the way and I groaned, arching up viciously from my temporary perch to entice him. It was no fun if I had to do all the work.

Leaning over me, his eyes bored into mine, stunning in their intensity.

"Tina..." He curled his fingers into my hair, lips nuzzling my neck. "Are you sure about this?"

"Do you really have to ask?"

He crushed his lips to mine, holding my head back as he dominated me. I melted into his touch, voice echoing into a low moan that spoke of desire held in for far, far too long. He caught a sliver of skin between his teeth, pressed his lips to the spot and sucked harder, drawing me up into him. I hissed out through my teeth. Yes! This was what I had wanted, this was what I had needed all this time. It had only taken a gentle push in the right direction to get everything rolling on oh so smoothly. If only everything in life could be so easy.

I had had the need for him for so long – even a second of delay seemed like too long in the moment. And, although it was evening and most livery owners would be long gone for the day, there was always the chance that someone would wander in unannounced to a most unexpected sight. I unhooked my ankles from around his waist and pushed him away, rolling on to my front and rocking up on to all fours. Shuffling my knees apart, I ripped the check shirt away from my hips and shoved my denim shorts down to my knees, letting them hold my legs there even as they restricted movement. In all truth, I kind of liked the restriction. It gave the impression that I was bound when not. One day, I would have to explore that. But not today.

Joshua murmured – I could only assume in appreciation – and ran his hand down my back from the base of my neck to my buttocks. Like the cat who got the cream, I purred and arched into him, hat tipping askew as I angled my head and looked back at him over my shoulder.

The smile never once left my lips, quirking up on one side. I knew what I wanted. I was ready. I had been ready for a long time. Did he know?

That was easily rectified, if not.

“Please...” I rolled my hips back, thong tugged to the side. “Fuck me. I need you now.”

He eyed me up and down, tapping a finger against his hard jaw.

“Not yet,” he said, pushing me down on my front with a firm hand between my shoulder blades. “You haven’t earned that yet, not after all your teasing and flaunting.”

My eyes widened even as my legs shook, underwear soaked through and juices dripping down my inner thighs. This wasn’t what I’d expected, no – not at all!

“What are you... Oh...”

My question fell dead on my lips as Joshua dropped to his knees and spread my legs, forcing them apart with my wedge heels still on. No doubt the cork was clogged full of straw but I couldn’t think of that. His fingers held my thong to the side, slick with my arousal, and he leaned in, flicking the very tip of his tongue over my lips. Squealing, I kicked out like a mare in season, rocking back into his touch until he pinned me down with a heavy hand in the small of my back, dipping his tongue wickedly between my folds. It was as if he knew his light, teasing touches would drive me wild even before he knew exactly how my body would react. Unable to glean a drop more stimulation, I thumped my fist into the straw and growled my frustration, hat finally falling off to be lost between the bales. Fuck it!

“Easy there, filly...”

Filly? I tried to pretend that the word had no effect on me, scoffing loud enough that I was sure he heard. He had to hear. Regardless, he pushed his tongue between my folds, finding my entrance and plunging in deep to taste my sweet nectar. I moaned, fingers curling into fists, and shivered, wishing he didn’t have this effect on me. His tongue grew bored of penetrating my passage with blessed speed, however, and wandered to the nub of my clit, teasing over and around in slow, lazy circles that gave the impression that he had all day to do whatever he wanted with me. I shuddered. All day with Joshua? That would be a pleasure indeed, despite his wiles. In person, he lacked the charm I’d expected.

His lips locked around my clit and I cried out, stifling my moans into my forearm as I ducked my head. His fingers were far from idle too and he licked one digit before slipping it almost without any resistance at all into my needy pussy. I clenched around him, just wanting his cock – not this half substitute. I growled. Why wouldn’t he just fuck me? Why was he playing games? Fucking me. He added a second finger to my cunt and drove them in hard, startling a gasp from my lips as he twisted beneath me, nose pressing into my crotch as he lavished attention upon my clit.

Yet he still held me down like a youngster that needed to be tamed. Struggling to free myself – the annoyance of the shorts caught between my knees grew old swiftly – I twisted and bucked like a wild horse to shove the clothing down, to get it off through any means possible. He released the pressure from my back and I shot upright, though was not spared the restless curl of his fingers twitching up against my g-spot as if he knew exactly where to find it. My head lolled back and I groaned, hips bucking into his hand. What was wrong with me? I should not have been that easy to read? Yet this man knew exactly what to do to leave me as helpless and wanton as putty in his hands.

I could not abide it. Anger flared it, stoked by passion in the pit of my stomach.

“Fuck you, Joshua!” I hissed, worming my shorts down to my calves as the relentless assault on my pussy continued, fingers thrusting deeper. “You knew what I wanted all this time and you teased me – teased me! What was the point in that?”

I kicked off my shorts and stood there, breasts heaving, challenging him. He merely tipped my chin up to his and caught my lips in a light kiss, so fleeting that I was left groaning and wanting more against my will. I twisted my fingers together behind my back, backing up until my calves hit the square of straw. Damn him to hell.

“The fun is in the breaking, not chasing a filly around the field, Tina.”

“Fuck you!” I snarled, striking his chest.

Only, my hand never connected with his chest. He caught me, a laugh on his lips, and then I was on my knees without knowing how I’d gotten there, knees spread in scraps of old straw and the rafters yawning above. I scowled up at him with my prettiest pout. Surely he would relent? I was slowly realising that brute force would do me no good against a man prepared to use his strength to keep me playfully in line. I would have been nervous if not for the playful gleam in his eye and the gasp hiding just a fraction behind his lips. I hid my smile. He would be mine yet.

“You are unsuitably clothed,” I purred, hooking my fingers over his belt. “Let me help you with that.”

If he clocked my change in tone, he didn’t make comment. He didn’t need to say anything. I unbuckled his belt with a finesse that surprised even me and unzipped his jeans, maintaining eye contact. It didn’t matter that I was on my knees. I held the floor.

I only needed to tug his boxer briefs down – a stylish choice in a designer brand, I liked a man with excellent taste – to allow his cock to spring out in all its hardened glory. The shaft was thick and girthy, just how I liked it, without the length proving too much to handle. It was no fun when you had inches you couldn’t use, after all. Waste not, want not... That’s what I’d always said and no doubt would continue to say. I smirked, taking his cock in hand and wrapping my fingers around the length. Joshua groaned, head tipping back before he could catch himself. I didn’t bother myself with the rest of his clothing; I had my prize. His jeans could stay on, or mostly on, at least. It wasn’t necessary to dirty them. Me? I liked being naked. But this was no time to be tossing my vest top on the floor in a fit of passion. I had a man to conquer and our battle of wills had only just begun.

Parting my lips prettily around the head of his cock, I suckled his tip into my mouth, swirling my tongue around the smooth glands. He bucked, quivering, into my mouth, unwittingly thrusting deeper. Pressing my hand into his hip, fingers splayed, I held him back, aware with a subtle thrill that I’d have no place to go if he decided to use his strength ‘against’ me. He could oh so easily pin me back against the stable wall, hands flat on the wooden divider and drive into my mouth with raw abandon. He could fuck my mouth until he emptied his balls right down my throat and, I had to say, I would gulp down every single drop of his pleasure like a whore in a back alley. But that wasn't part of the game, my game. I teased my fingers and thumb over his balls, cupping them lightly in my palm. He shivered. I'd make him wish my mouth was my pussy, crave to sink into my tight warmth.

I would have him.

Gathering myself, I pushed down on his shaft, lips rounded into a tight 'O' around his fat length. What would he feel like inside me, driving in with as much desperate urgency as I'd imagined? I struggled between coughing and gagging as the tip nudged the back of my throat, going deep, and I drew back to allow myself respite. It had been a while. But hey – practice made perfect. I'd have to have a lot of practice with Joshua, if he could be so persuaded.

Lipstick smearing on his dick, I plunged down again, bolder this time. I toyed with his balls as I bobbed my head, spurred on by his eager pants, so like an animal that I almost forgot it was the object of my desires with me. So often had I heard the sound in my fantasies that it was too easy to assume that, once again, I was dreaming and about to wake with that telltale wetness between my thighs. He could have transformed into the very horse he owned and I wouldn't have known the difference in the moment, so enraptured was I with the man I was slowly entwining within my net.

He twisted his fingers into my hair and I let him guide me, pretending to submit to his control. The truth of the matter was that I'd already won. He only didn't know it yet. My lips worked their magic along his length and I pushed down my need as it swelled, pussy slick and thong pressing between my flushed lips. Well, that was another one ruined but, this time, for damn good reason.

His legs shook and he shifted them apart for balance, letting me know that we were very nearly there, at the point where I could place my demands and have them fulfilled. Pressing my tongue to the underside of his shaft, I hollowed my cheeks with the force expended in suckling, teasing him as if my life depended on it without pushing him completely over the edge. I could have been disappointed with how he was like any other man I'd had, so easy to tame, but I was too keen to enjoy the full extent of my prize. Pulling my lips from his cock with a wet slurp of pre-cum and saliva, I batted my eyelashes at him, tugging my vest top down to expose one barely covered breast. The low cups of my white, lace bra left little to the imagination with the suggestion of an areola peeking over the upper edge of the cup. White was too pure for me but it drove Joshua crazy.

Hissing through his teeth, he dragged my head back and drove between my lips. But I was ready for him. I parted my lips willingly and let him in as deep as a long lost lover, cradling and rolling his nuts between my fingers. I tucked my nails carefully out of the way and massaged his sack lovingly, imagining the taste of him on my tongue before I gulped him down, reluctant to waste a drop of what he had to give me. My free hand dropped between my thighs. I could not resist even myself and drove two fingers into my pussy with a muffled moan around his cock. Working them deep, I imagined he was fucking me, pinning me against the wall with my legs wrapped around his waist, taking me as I knew I deserved to be taken.

Joshua groaned. It would not be long now. His fingers played across the back of my neck as I suckled his shaft like a fine treat, pre-cum drooling viscously on to my tongue. I swallowed eagerly, curious for the taste of him and immediately wanted more. His musk enveloped me, strong from a day working the stables, and beads of sweat rolled down his skin, trickling down from his abs to the tops of his thighs and cutting hips, edged by that ‘V’ of muscle. My fingers twitched up against my g-spot, that wicked bundle of nerves, and I inhaled sharply through my nostrils. Joshua pulled my head back, a look that I could only describe as purely pleading in his eye. He now needed me as much as I needed him. Perfect.

Scrambling to my feet, I knelt on the straw bales and arched my back, thrusting my thong-clad backside towards him. No man could resist me, least of all him.

Growling, I dug my fingers into the straw and cast him a feral look back over my shoulder, pulling my thong aside. My pussy lips begged for attention, shiny with my arousal even though he had hardly touched me through the entire liaison so far, or so it felt. Sometimes my mind was more erotic than my body – the idea setting my skin afire as I wanted him more and more and more. I licked my lips.

“Take me.”

It was a command now readily obeyed: I had him. Nearly tripping over his own feet in his haste to get to me – the jeans tangling lower down his thighs didn’t help either – he grabbed my hips and drew me to him. But our bodies didn’t match up. His cock slid over my buttocks and up to the small of my back as he thrust and growled in frustration, subject to animalistic needs now that I’d stoked the embers into a blaze. Hardly dissuaded – there would always be some technical difficulties – I lifted a foot up on to the straw and balanced there, the wedge helping me gain height. It was enough.

His cock found my pussy and sank in halfway. A ripple ran through Joshua’s body and he groaned, pressing onward. Frozen in place, I arched back on to that thick shaft and dug my teeth into the inside of my cheek until the metallic taste of blood flooded my mouth. Fuck, he was big! Though not too big, or so I liked to think. I wouldn’t have ever confessed to biting off more than I could chew anyway, no way in hell. I leaned forward, holding on to the twine around the straw for purchase even as it cut into my palm, the full length of my man stretching me wide. The scent of straw and dust in the air tickled my nose and I stifled a sneeze, hating to ruin the moment. It wasn’t the time for a funny sex story. I wanted this one to be good.

A low, feral groan rolled from my lips

“Fuck me like you’re a stud,” I whispered.

I wanted nothing more and my ‘stallion’ was eager to deliver. Drawing out of me, he wasted no time in slamming back in with enough force to jerk me forward into the bale. Moaning, I ducked my head and clung on to the twine, hoping against hope that it wouldn’t break and send me face first into the neatly bound up straw. That would for sure ruin the moment! His shaft plunged deep, tip grazing the barrier of my cervix without bumping painfully into the obstruction. I groaned softly, letting him take me as he would and rock my body to a rhythm of his own making. He could have me any way he wished until the end of time if only he would keep fucking me like that, strong, rough thrusts that claimed me with every stroke.

Reaching between my thighs, I threw caution and my balance to the wind and rubbed my clit, lights dancing behind my closed eyes. So close... Every stroke of his cock ran over my g-spot, the angle just right for the moment. I shivered, dropping to an elbow with my cheek pressed to the scratchy straw. How could a man that had spent so little time in the same room as me know my body so well already? Maybe it was luck of the draw.

Or maybe he was just that good.

“Tina...” He ground his teeth together, jaw clenched so hard that it shook. “I’m going to....going to...”

He trailed off, twisting his head to the side as his pulse flickered in his throat.

“Fucking fill me!” I snapped, crude on the edge. “I want you to come, Josh, fucking come in me!”

His hips twitched against me and then suddenly his body was covering mine, chest pressed to my back and an arm around my waist, pushing my hand away from my pussy. I whined, angry at the abrupt absence of stimulation, but quickly came around when his hand replaced mine. That was so much better to have another’s touch. Rubbing my clit in needy circles, pulling the skin lightly with his fingers, he matched the time of his sharp, short thrusts, hips slapping into my arse. His balls swung forward with every thrust, a constant reminder of what was to come. If only I could push him over the edge. But mine was swiftly approaching and drove all thoughts of Joshua’s climax from my mind.

Closer, closer, closer... I tipped my head back and pushed my body up against his, a feral cry ripping itself unbidden from my lips. My orgasm shook me, crashing down on me with the force of a herd of horses, galloping as one across plains long forgotten. Something in me thundered and I lost myself to the ecstasy, mind numbing pleasure taking my body and claiming it for its own. My pussy twitched and clenched, muscles rippling without my bidding, and Joshua hissed loudly, movements increasingly erratic as he struggled to hold me as I twisted.

Through my climax, I was dimly aware of Joshua’s thrusts speeding up, barely pulling out before driving back in. He grunted like a stallion as he fucked me, fingers leaving marks on my hips. And then he thrust hard enough to lift my knees from the bale, a low, guttural sound unlike any I’d ever heard before rolling from his lips. His seed filled me, drooling out of my pussy as he jerked, pumping me full. Although it was impossible for such sensation to be transmitted, I imagined that I could feel his hot spunk spreading through my pussy, firing me up for more. Perhaps we should have used a condom... I rolled my eyes inwardly. No matter. There would be no kids out of this fuck with me on the pill at least. That was something that could be touched upon when he wasn’t balls deep in me. It wasn’t a major concern by any stretch of the imagination.

“Fuck, Tina,” he breathed. “You really are something there, sweetheart.”

I slid down to the bales of straw, dazed and pulling him with me. He stayed inside me, body covering mine, and I liked that he wasn’t afraid to rest his weight on top of me. It was good to find a man that didn’t treat me like a delicate little flower, about to break under the slightest pressure. I mean, give me a break. I laughed softly to myself in the post-orgasmic afterglow, his lips nuzzling my ear.

“What’s so funny?” He asked.

“Nothing, nothing at all,” I giggled, twisting on to my side as he helpfully lifted some of his weight up from me, eyelids drooping. “Just never thought I’d be doing this, with you, before starting my Saturday night.”

His eyes twinkled sleepily and his softening cock dropped lightly over my thigh leaving a sticky trail of cum, marking me.

“Well, I sure am glad you popped up here after all that,” he drawled softly, slinking an arm around my waist. “Maybe I’ll see you around here a little more often even when you don’t have your mare to tend to.”

I smiled privately. Maybe. Just maybe. That would be my decision and not his, however. It was nice to lie there as the sun set outside, casting a golden-crimson hue through the high windows set into the wall of the barn, up near the rafters. But time was getting on and I’d gotten what I wanted. There was still a night out to be had and, now, a story to me told.

“This has been fun.” I broke the silence, rocking up to my feet and reaching for my cast away clothes, thong slipping back into place over my well used pussy. “It’s time I was leaving though. The ladies are waiting for me, you know.” I winked, softening the blow of my hasty departure the best I could, for his sake. “I’m a woman in demand. Hate to run off but you know how it is.”

He chuckled throatily and sat up, shaking his head. Something in the line of his body made me pause, hesitating as my confidence wavered in the moment. Joshua scratched the stubble on his chin and leaned back on his hands, chest pushed out as if to show off the muscle beneath his plain t-shirt. My heart skipped a beat. I couldn’t... Could I? One fling with the sexy trainer – was that not enough for me?

It seemed that it was no longer up to me.

“Sweetheart...” He raised an eyebrow. “Did you really think it would be that easy?”

I hesitated, one hand on my discarded shorts, strewn with strands of straw and, strangely, a random scrap of orange baling twine. He grabbed my wrist and spun me about to face him, fingers curled all the way around the joint

“You thought you could walk in here, have your roll in the hay and that would be that?”

I would have been scared of him but that playful glint danced through his eyes, drawing me into their depths. As he pulled me to his chest, his arms encircled my bare waist and he nudged a finger beneath my chin, pushing it up to his hot, hungry mouth. His tongue eased between my lips, slipping up to mine as if it belonged there, and I wrapped my arms around his neck, nipples pressed to his chest as his fingers squeezed lightly into the flesh and muscle of my midriff.

My chest heaved when the kiss finally broke, toes curling in riding boots that I, belatedly, wished I'd taken the time to slip off. From the look in Josh's eye, it didn't seem that I'd be leaving the barn until darkness had enveloped the stables. And perhaps not even then would he allow me on my way with a lingering, delicious soreness cradled between my thighs. I nipped the inside of my cheek, hiding the pounding of my heart and all that conveyed with a flick of my hand that tucked my hair more neatly back behind my ear. The funny thing was, when it came to going home for the day, I didn't have much of an inclination to leave either.

Grinning, he kissed a line along my jaw and a moan burst unbidden from my lips, a traitorous sound. He would know he had me, like he had from the first time our eyes had locked. He had always had me, this man, my Joshua.

"It would never have been a one-time fling, Tina." He confirmed what I already knew but needed to hear, eyes darkening as he tipped his chin down. "It was never going to be that easy. You should have known that. Maybe you did."

He smirked, lips quirking up on one side, though there was not an ounce of malice in his expression, only playful lust.

"Now bend over."

And I did just that. For him. For Joshua.

And maybe even just for the beginnings of love stirring in my heart.