

Cuckolded by a Gryphon

I knew what Linda loved on our very first date. She wasn't shy about withholding the information from me. I'd fallen for her before she'd even sat down at the little round table in the cutesy cafe – somewhere I'd never have thought to set foot in alone. Tossing her blonde hair back over her shoulder, she parted her lips in a smile, blue eyes sparkling as brightly as her pink lip gloss.

Oh, how I wanted those lips pressed against mine.

“Hi, I'm Linda.”

Such simple words shouldn't have come from such beautiful lips, her voice eloquent and clear as she spoke. Linda was special. I didn't want to be as mesmerised by her as I was, but perhaps that is only the song that is true love, told from the lips of an angel in the instant of falling. I could only recount what happened and I loved Linda from that very first date, the bustle of the cafe ebbing and flowing around us as if we were a rock in a tide pool, subject the whims of the changing tide, yet never quite caught up in it.

Yet every angel had her dark side.

“I think you should know one thing about me before we go any further,” she said, crossing one leg over the other as her eyes raked me with what I thought in the moment to be a speculative edge. “I don't want to be said to be leading you on, not with what happened with the last guy.”

I swallowed and raised my eyebrows, lips smiling even as my heart pounded. When had my mouth become so dry?

“The last guy?” I tried to joke. “Did you kill him off or something?”

She laughed and the sound made my heart leap into my throat all over again, eyes fixed unashamedly to the rise and fall of her breasts, concealed only by the dark blue fabric of her blouse.

“Well, that's not something I can tell you,” she shot back, eyes twinkling, “or else I'd have to kill you. So we're going to have to keep that little note just between us, capiche?”

I smiled and mimed zipping my lips shut. She tucked a strand of hair behind her ear, hoop earring swinging lightly.

“I...” She hesitated for the first time, the flirty back and forth we'd had going stumbling over its own feet. “Well, it's almost kind of embarrassing to say out here.” She looked around, cheeks colouring with a blush that had not been there before. “Out in public...you know?”

“Do you want to go somewhere more private?”

I didn't really want to go anywhere else – what on earth could she have to say that she couldn't tell me in public? – but it felt like the gentlemanly thing to offer either way. To my relief, however, she shook her head, twiddling a piece of her hair between her fingertips. I couldn't help but notice that her nails were trimmed short with not a drop of polish, though I could not have told whether or not they had been manicured further. It only struck me as strange to see a woman with such style and sophisticated class oozing from her without that final touch of femininity.

How she was different from all the rest only made me want her more.

"I do hope you won't run, not like the others..." Linda looked down at her coffee, though the dregs dried at the bottom of the cup. "But I've rather a thing about gryphons."

I blinked. Everyone knew about the gryphons; they were impossible to miss. Great, big, hulking beasts, they sauntered the streets as if they owned the city, feathers ruffled and beaks cocked as they went about their business. They were said to be just like us, but I'd never had the good fortune – or bad luck, perhaps – to interact with one of them, bar exchanging casual greetings or fleeting pleasantries in public. But I did not understand, at least not at that point. There was so much I'd have to learn.

"So..." I shook my head. "I'm sorry, perhaps I'm not getting this. They are wonderful creatures..."

Oh, god, that made them sound just like animals – what if the gryphon sipping his ice tea heard me? I choked on saliva, coughed and fought to recover.

"I mean, not that." I flushed, ears turning pink. "There's nothing not to like about them. They're respectable members of society, just like you and me."

Wow, was that the best I could come up with? Tugging at the collar of my shirt, I closed my lips and wished I could disappear into the ground. I was good and done digging a hole for myself – let Linda do the talking.

She giggled, covering her mouth with her hand.

"Yes...I do agree there. But that's not quite what I meant."

I looked up from where I had been contemplating the lines in the wood of the tabletop.

"Then what did you mean?"

Linda slid her gaze away.

"I mean that I like them... Really like them. There's something different about the gryphons..."

Her eyes took on a dreamy cast as she spoke, I as enraptured as ever.

"I don't want a relationship with one, I know that would never work and it's why I've not been with them on more than dates." She leaned forward as if confiding a deep secret in me, elbows on the table. "But it's those dates that I want to keep, even if I'm in a relationship with someone else. Someone special to me."

I leaned back in my chair, moving away as she moved closer.

“You want...” I grappled with the concept. “You want to date gryphons, but be in a relationship?”

She giggled, looking down as she toyed with the napkin.

“Yes, that’s pretty much the idea of it. They have something a man just can’t deliver, but, similarly, a gryphon just can’t match up to a man when it comes to relationships. We’re just not compatible like that – we have different ideas there.”

Her eyes smouldered as she peered at me through her eyelashes, curled with dark mascara.

“But in the bedroom...” She inhaled, lips parting. “That’s a very different matter. There...we fit perfectly. And I do so love to be watched.”

My jaw fell slack, though I tried to close my mouth quickly enough so that she wouldn’t catch it. My head reeled and I reached for my empty cup of coffee, turning it round and round in the confines of its little plate for the feint of a distraction. Could such a perfect woman have such a dirty little secret? I tried to swallow, but my mouth was too dry to force a single drop of saliva down my throat.

But I had to try. She already had me.

“You mean to say... You...”

I couldn’t force the words out and rubbed the back of my neck. Luckily, Linda was there to say what I could not and do the work for me.

“Yes.” She bit her lip. “I like to fuck gryphons. And I like my partner to watch me doing it.”

She squirmed, brushing the tip of her finger over her lower lip.

“I know it’s a deal breaker for some, if not most, so it’s best if I say now rather than later, right?”

I took a deep breath, drawing out the inhalation for as long as seemed reasonable. It gave me space to think, mind racing quicker than I could ever have imagined. I’d never been the quickest of thinkers, but Linda spurred new life to my mind.

And I thought...well... Wouldn’t it be progressive of me to at least entertain the idea? Was it really so bad? After all, she was being honest with me right from the get go. I shook my head, pressing my fingers into my temples and rubbing in circles that were supposed to be soothing, but only seemed to heighten my predicament of tension.

One shot. I’d give it a one shot. For Linda. For a chance. For saying that I tried something new.

“Why would I mind?” I swallowed hard, striving to hide the nerves from showing on my face, brow wanting to furrow against every ounce of my will. “I’m sure I can understand the...attraction.” I glanced back at the gryphon sitting by the window again and swore he caught my gaze. “Though I appreciate you being upfront with me now, certainly.”

She chuckled and adjusted her blouse, sitting up with her shoulders square.

“I expect that leads us to where we are then. I did hope that you might have been different, but I completely understand why you say what you say.” She tried to hold her smile, but the life in her cheekbones fell. “I really did enjoy our date, Edward.”

I reached for her hand, covering it with my own in a sudden spark of boldness that I had not known I’d possessed.

“You think I’m saying no?”

Her eyes widened.

“You’re not?”

I tried to smile, but nerves clouded my expression.

Now or never.

“I appreciate your honesty. Perhaps it is something I could also enjoy. But I can’t make any promises.” I sat back. “The ball’s in your court, Linda. I’m willing to give it a shot, if you want to too.”

My heart pounded. Would she go for it? I couldn’t promise her anything. Why hadn’t she had that on her dating profile? It seemed like something she could have said earlier! But the words were out of my mouth and hanging in the air between us before I could even think of stopping them and there was no taking them back.

Linda blinked at me as if she could not believe her eyes, glancing through the window to where two gryphons strolled along, leonine tails undulating gently with their steps. I wondered if she was choosing one as a potential mate even then, speculating what secrets their lusts may have held.

“I’d love to try,” she breathed, leaning across the table, eyes earnest. “Like you, I can’t make any promises. Yet if you know and you still want to see what we can make of each other...”

She trailed off, lips curving back into that beautiful smile that made my heart sing. My own lips rose at the corners to meet hers, genuine warmth flushing my cheeks. She wound her fingers between mine and pulled my hand closer to her body, squeezing lightly. The roughness on her fingers made me start, but I smoothed my thumb over the back of her hand, her touch warming to mine.

“Then it’s settled.” My words were bolder than my mind, which jabbered gibberish in my ear. “We’ll see what we can make of this, what we’ve found between us. Just like any other date. Dating.”

I smiled wider. I liked the idea of dating Linda. She grinned and raised her empty coffee cup in a mock toast, fingers tightening around mine. I couldn't help but shiver. And, even then, I think I knew what I was getting into. Just a little bit. Even back then, I wanted it. Oh, I wanted it more than I could ever have admitted to myself.

"In that case... To us!"

And so it was my fate to be forever cuckolded by the gryphons.

*

Three years down the line and what man could have asked for more? I had a beautiful wife and a happy home, though no children to speak of. I knew why, though I rolled my shoulders in a shrug and smiled half-heartedly whenever anyone took the time to ask the question of me. It's so invasive – why don't you have children yet? – but they wouldn't have understood the answer if I'd had the balls to give it anyway. Linda didn't want a child from me. She wanted an egg from a gryphon.

And, if she had her way, that was exactly what she was going to get.

She'd set the scene perfectly, at least by my reckoning. Our bedroom – we'd moved in together, of course – boasted a little secret to it, in the form of a mirror that ran the full length of one wall, facing the bed. Only we, however, knew how to access the room behind the mirror, a space wide enough for a person to stand or kneel or crouch or even slip onto all fours. It was the space where I belonged and where I watched each and every one of her liaisons, hand wrapped around my throbbing cock until I spilled. Yet I could never match a single load of the beasts thrusting, squawking, into my wife.

And that night was the first that she'd be off her contraceptive pill, ripe breeding. I shivered, rubbing the flat of my palm down my arm even though I wasn't cold at all. I just wanted what was about to happen as much as she did. Linda hadn't let me push into her since she'd come off her pill, teasing and holding me at arm's reach while she pleased herself or, on some occasions, masturbated me with her hand and mouth. I knew my cock didn't feel as good to her as that of a gryphon's, however, and exactly what she was thinking of when she sank her lips down the length of my shaft. It was always one of them and was always going to be one of them.

Yet it still excited me like the very first day I'd watched her being taken by one of the beasts, a stunning creature with ebony wings. He'd stalked her into the bedroom, eyes fixed on the sinuously sway of her buttocks as she shimmied out of her skirt, a giggle and a flirt on her lips.

Back against the wall, I pushed up onto my toes, exhaling softly on the other side of the mirror. One-way, it allowed me to see the room perfectly, including the ticking clock on the wall over the bed, without letting the current inhabitants of the bedroom know that they were being watched at all. I frowned. She was late.

My heart beat quicker and I licked my lips, wishing I'd had the forethought to bring a bottle of water into the secluded spot with me. But it was too late now and I couldn't be sure that, if I crept out, I would be able to sneak back in again without scaring off Linda's partner. I gulped, pulling the collar of my t-shirt away from my neck as one particular memory flashed to the forefront of my mind. Linda had not been happy when my presence had put the tawny gryphon – an early flame – off his ‘game’ so to speak and he’d left in a huff with more than ruffled feathers in his wake.

I’d not made the same mistake twice of putting myself in a position of dealing with an unhappy wife.

The front door closed. I stiffened, shoulder blades rigid. She was home?

Excitement stirred in the put of my belly, curling up to my heart. I shouldn’t have been as keen as I was – what man, after all, wants a beast like a gryphon to breed, let alone, impregnate his wife? I blushed, although there was no one there to see me, cock rising against the front of my jogging bottoms. Linda would have giggled and pawed at it, lips quirking up on one side if she’d seen me so aroused so swiftly. But that was my shame and my pleasure, in equal amounts, to be borne privately.

Her voice drifted up the stairs, but there was no clinking of wine glasses this time, a couple enjoying their time together before reconvening to the bedroom. My wife laughed as she padded up the stairs, odd thumps and bumps coming from the stairway as if she was stumbling into the walls, her tread heavier than usual and out of tune with the steps of the beast behind her. I strained to hear, nose grazing my side of the mirror. Who had she brought back with her? Would it be a gryphon who had taken her before? Would I recognise him?

I sucked in a breath, clapping my hand across my mouth so that I would not cry out as they entered the room. Linda came first, pushed in by the beak of an enormous gryphon. With brown white flecked with white, he was the largest I’d seen yet and certainly not a creature she’d experienced before. As Linda collapsed, giggling, on the bed, his hindquarters followed, a massive pair of lighter brown lion paws sinking into our carpet. He tipped his black beak up and peered around the room, blinking slowly, though quickly returned his attention to the woman wriggling out of her blouse before him. Crooning, he dipped his beak to the crook of her neck, nuzzling down between her breasts as she arched up to meet his touch.

Shaking my head, I tried to be quiet. But he would be a hard one to just watch, wishing every moment that I was one of them and big enough to give my wife the taboo pleasure she craved. With such a colossal size, I could only wonder and squirm at the thought of how much he would stretch out my wife.

Would she take every inch?

I would soon find out.

Linda moaned softly, hands smoothing down the gryphon’s neck and shoulders as he pushed his forelegs up onto the bed, claws quickly tearing through the covers as he gripped. I rolled my eyes. Damn it. There went another duvet.

My wife, however, didn’t notice the elongating tears, skirt flipped up as she wriggled back on the bed to allow the beast to push his beak up to her pussy. Covered only by a scanty thong, she may as well have been wearing no underwear at all. The gryphon seemed to agree, rumbling that strange purr of theirs as I caught the flash of his tongue snaking out across the damp fabric, a wet patch soaking through where it pressed between her lips. She hissed through her teeth and clung to him, fingers stroking the tufts of feathers that denoted where his ears lay.

“Lelantos...” She breathed. “I’ve wanted you for so long.”

I bit back a groan. She never spoke to me like that.

Lelantos reared his head back, licking her wetness from his beak. My heart thudded and I slowly pushed my trousers down, letting my cock spring free into the capture of my hand.

Oh gods...

“It is unusual for me to find one of your kind so eager...” Lelantos shook his head, amber eyes piercing in their intensity. “Though I cannot say it is an unpleasant surprise in the slightest. One as fine as you are, my dear, can only be savoured and enjoyed.”

He rumbled, pressing his beak to her face to share a brief kiss, tongue flicking out to dance with hers between her lips and his beak. Linda laid a kiss on the side of his beak, pushing her hips up from the bed so that she could wriggle her skirt down her legs, kicking it aside to leave her in just her underwear. I grinned to myself. That wouldn’t last very long at all if I knew my wife.

True to form, as the gryphon dove back between her legs, she succeeded in unhooking the clasp of her bra, tossing it aside as soon as the straps fell down her arms. Her thong, on the other hand, was more difficult to remove with an increasingly horny gryphon intent on driving his tongue into her pussy. Laughing breathlessly, she somehow managed to push him aside for long enough to bend her knees up, exposing her cunt as she slipped the material down her long, shapely legs.

The gryphon didn’t wait for her to put her legs back down, squawking as he forced her to keep her knees up close to her chest, tongue driving lustfully into her pussy with a lewd, wet squelch. Linda squealed and rolled her head from shoulder to shoulder, hair a tousled mess around her head, though I could not imagine she’d care about something like that. My wife rocked against him, letting the gryphon take her as he willed, tongue curling up to flick over the swollen nub of her clit. The heave of her body was beautiful – enough to drive a man mad with lust. But there was something else happening between the Lelantos’ hind legs. Something that I had to pay attention to even if my wife was otherwise distracted.

It was as massive as the rest of him, a hard, pink length with gentle ridges undulating along the length. Tapered to a smooth point, he would have as easy entry to her as any other gryphon, despite his size. My chest heaved, brushing the glass of the mirror. I didn’t know if they’d hear me if I gasped, but I didn’t want to take the risk as Lelantos half-mounted the bed, cock slapping his underbelly. I gnawed the inside of my lip until it bled, willing myself to be quiet.

He was as ready to mate as she was.

As if in a daze, Linda squirmed down the bed, legs spread wide for the gryphon, although it was no longer the attention of his tongue that she was after. Lelantos crooned softly, toying with her hair as his member dropped between her obscenely spread thighs. There was never much time for foreplay with a gryphon, instinct driving them on to breed, and Linda hissed through her teeth, planting her feet and arching up from the bed in an attempt to allow his slickening shaft into her. It produced its own lubrication, like every other gryphon-cock I'd seen so far, and would ensure that any female he chose would have an easy entry.

Most females of his kind would be a size larger than Linda, however.

Unlike a man, Lelantos could not grasp his cock with a hand and guide himself in, forced to buck and thrust like a mere beast searching for her enticing warmth. Linda took pity on him as his cock slid wetly over her thigh, grasping it between two hands and moaning breathily as she pulled him between her legs. He followed willingly, beak dipped down to her cheek, and spread his wings wide as the tip eased between the lips of her pussy, right where he had to thrust.

The gryphon's eyes bulged and he squawked triumphantly as he speared into my wife. The tip pushed in with greater ease than the fat girth, which quickly stretched her wider and wider, forcing her pussy lips into a tight 'O' around him. Linda groaned, clinging to his forelegs as his path pushed him further and further over her, half his length squeezing its way deep into her cunt. My wife twisted and I would have thought she was in pain if not for the blush heating up her face and spreading down her neck as if the sheer force of her lust could not be contained.

I should have been concerned for her. I should have worried. Instead, my heart leapt and my cock drooled pre-cum onto my own hand. My wife cried out as the ridges popped into her, nails digging into Lelantos' foreleg – the scaly-leathery skin which was part of his avian side.

My heart pounded, a dull roar in my ears. The gryphon was going to give her an egg to hatch. A young gryphlet of our very own.

Lelantos rumbled a groan, tail lashing as he drove into my wife, hips working for his own pleasure.

"You crave this, don't you?" He purred, leaning in close to her face as she groaned and wrapped her arm around his neck. "This is what you've been waiting for. One such as me to make you nothing but a breeding toy." He fluffed up his feathers, appearing especially proud of himself for a split second. "A breeding female for a gryphon."

Linda moaned and nodded, chin bobbing quickly as she sought to reassure him. Her eyes were lidded and I tried to imagine what she was thinking, pumping my cock roughly in time with the gryphon's strokes into her. But I knew that she would still be stretched out by his colossal girth next time I had the good fortune to push inside her. I only hoped she'd be kind enough to grant me sloppy seconds.

"Yes..." Linda licked her lips, raking what she could see of the gryphon's body with her gaze as his hindquarters worked, driving another inch into her snatch, demanding she take more of him. “I want that. That’s exactly what I want. Just for you to take me over and over again, seed your clutch in my womb and make me your breeding female.”

I swallowed. Was there nothing my wife would not love when it concerned the gryphons? If only it did not make my cock throb so.

The gryphon’s eyes glinted as he touched his beak to her nose, looking down the wicked curve of it at the woman below him.

“But we’re not alone here, are we, Linda, my sweet?”

The beast hissed over her face, his breath lifting her hair from her shoulders. She swallowed and shook her head, cheekbones pink as she turned her head to face me.

“There,” she whispered. “My husband watches from there.”

The gryphon ruffled his feathers and I swore a smirk crossed his beak, even though I was quite sure after all this time that they could not make such an expression with such a beak.

“Perhaps you should invite him out to join us.”

I gulped and would have shrank back if there had been anywhere for me to go. As it was, I was discovered and there was nothing I could do about it but obey the beast’s wishes. We all knew who was the alpha of the house and it certainly wasn’t me.

Stepping out of my trousers, which had fallen around my ankles sometime during the course of my masturbation, I exited the hidden room via a door at the end of the mirror, close to the wall. I only wore a t-shirt, though it was not enough to conceal my arousal as I blushed heatedly and looked down at my feet, hands held loosely at my sides.

Lelantos clacked the edges of his beak together and threw his head up, gripping the bed with his forepaws as he growled and thrust with greater force and determination, now that he had an audience. Trapped beneath his belly, Linda’s knees rubbed against his soft fur – or at least I could only imagine that it was soft – and howled as he pounded into her, driving her hips down into the bed. The gryphon squawked, wings flapping in a massive downdraft that nearly had me toppling off my feet from the raw power of him, not even stumbling in his rhythm, driving into my wife over and over again like an animal. His eyes didn’t once leave mine as he showed me my place, claiming my wife as I never could.

“Come...”

I jerked my attention up to my wife’s face, having been enraptured by the swollen cock pounding her. She reached out for me and I gladly went to her, forgetting my own pleasure as I smiled shakily and laced my fingers through hers.

“Yes, love?”

My voice was coarse, as if from another’s lips, but I held her tight. The warmth of the gryphon seared through my t-shirt and I unconsciously leaned into him, wanting to feel his power. The stud breeding my wife rippled with muscle and I groaned in the back of my throat, feeling how his thrusts sped up with the tightening of the muscles running down his flank.

Linda guided my hand down to her lower abdomen, spreading my palm flat. I shuddered. The bulge pressing through her skin was obscene – it should not have fit. How would I ever please her once that monster was out of her again?

But I had my tongue and my hands. That was all my wife would ever need from me. I pressed my fingers to her clit, so close to that thrusting shaft, and rubbed softly, increasing the pressure as she groaned and twitched beneath my hand.

“Oh yes...” Her head rolled back to the bed. “More, please... Help him breed me.”

I blushed, but could do nothing else but obey my wife, teasing and flicking my fingers over her clit in all the motions that I knew she loved until she was on the edge of climax. The gryphon stretched out his wings, tips quivering, and ducked his head down as he hissed, hips suddenly speeding up. His cock drove in and out of her like a jackhammer, ridges dragging and sending splashes of mixed arousal out to stain her inner thighs. Linda moaned, begging me without words for release. But I was waiting on the gryphon, her true alpha and the alpha I could never be.

He didn't keep me waiting for long, throwing me a cocky look down the length of his body as he rammed in and screeched shrilly, wings fluttering. I could also see his balls, tucked in close to the fluff of his underbelly, pulling up closer to his body as his cock throbbed, emptying pulse after pulse of sweet, thick cum into my wife. I gulped. That was what I'd been waiting for. Linda howled, arm falling back to the bed. My fingers bore down on her clit, squeezing and rubbing as she shrieked and tried to buck, only held in place by the unmovable bulk of the gryphon breeding her. Resting the heel of my hand on her lower abdomen, I swore I felt her swell slightly from the obscene volume of cum alone he pumped into her.

Yet, even though he was a beast, his climax could not go on forever and a gryphon could not empty his load infinitely. Rolling his massive shoulders in a self-satisfied sigh, Lelantos' skin shivered, pulling over muscle in a fashion that was almost equine in its nature. He stepped back, purring softly, cock drawing itself from my wife's stretched, gaping cunt in a deluge of cum and breeding fluids. I groaned, running my hand down his flank. Could he have been any more majestic? Lelantos was everything Linda deserved and more.

And he only proved his worth as a breeding stud more and more as our time together increased. As he drew back, his cock did not even soften, instead hanging wetly below his stomach and leaving a gleaming trail of cum down Linda's thigh. Tossing his head proudly, Lelantos preened for a moment, chirping softly as if to himself and himself alone.

Though he was not done yet and scooped a paw under Linda's stomach, flipping her onto her stomach with a surprised squeal. Despite her shaking arms, she pushed herself onto all fours and arched back, showing off her stretched pussy for her stud. Lelantos clacked the edges of his beak together, cock slapping his underbelly, and chuckled throatily, every bit the stud I could not be for her.

“Watch me put eggs in your life, little man.”

And, as Lelantos took my wife again, sliding more easily into her stretched cunny, I knew there was nowhere else I'd rather be.