

Dealing with Dragons

Plan

Chapter 1

- Lily is working on her stable yard with her dragons, trying to train a stubborn beast. She is trying to 'break' him to saddle but it struggling to get him to comply. He doesn't want to be ridden and, though she gets one cloven hoof in the stirrup, throws her to the ground. He has been fine up to this point and Lily loses her temper, screaming at him as he tries to roar a challenge back through his muzzle, scales bristling fearsomely.
- Her partner, an iron grey stallion (anthro) tries to reassure her as she puts the dragon back in his stable. He is only her boyfriend but they are looking to get engaged, so he has a vested concern in her success. Lily, however, needs a big break and needs it soon as her business in dragon training is failing and no one wants to buy from her. She sighs and resolves to try her luck with a female (male dragons are kings and females are queens).

Chapter 2

- Lilian can't sleep and goes down to the stables while her boyfriend sleeps to look at the dragons, thinking that she can glean some insight under the cover of darkness. This is hopeless – there is nothing to be learned that would not have come from training – and she collapses in the stall of a dragon named Arthur/Artie that she was trying to train to perform tricks.
- Artie is restless and aroused as an intact male. The curious unicorn touches his shaft and is spurred on by his response, pleasing him with her paws and mouth like she would do (upon occasion) for her boyfriend.
- After oral and a messy release, Lily half-heartedly instructs Artie to lay down – a trick – which, to her astonishment, he does willingly, purring from climax. She runs him through a series of tricks and the dragon performs them all flawlessly as he has learned what is expected of him, only has not wanted to obey.
- She runs into the stable yard and leaps for joy, punching the air. It is a miracle! She can train her dragons after all!

Chapter 3

- The revelation of using sexual pleasure to train the dragons is a godsend to Lily and she thanks the gods and the stars above that she has discovered this. She tries the trick on one of her more aggressive dragons, a black male with teeth that hook down the outside of his muzzle, and is bolstered by the success. She gets him to work well under saddle, though he chomps at the bit.
- Her partner congratulates her on her success and they have drunken sex, thrilled by the sudden change in events. Lily has not told him about her secret and how giving the dragons oral also gives her pleasure too, making her wet between the thighs and soaking her jodhpurs. The stallion kisses her passionately as he ejaculates and she thinks that maybe one secret isn't so bad.

Chapter 4

- Things start to go wrong when she ventures into teaching her black dragon more advanced techniques, asking him to behave like a horse (leg yielding) in advanced movements that only those competing dragons in show arenas would be interested in. He demands oral from her, shaft dropping from its sheath, but she refuses – it's in the middle of the arena and training time. When she does not comply, he breeds her like a female and essentially rapes her, though the rough sex is a blessed relief to the worked up unicorn. It is as if this rough fuck is exactly what her body has been craving all this time.

- Luckily, the dragon's cock is small enough to breed her without harm and she is left panting in the sand, a cum splattered mess, while the dragon croons and cleans himself. She tells herself that this is the next stage in the process and performs several advanced dressage movements perfectly, even getting the dragon to extend his wings as cum oozes down the saddle.
- Later, Lily takes a pregnancy test and announces over the phone to her partner that the foal is his, though she cannot be sure. She does not believe that the creature stirring in her belly, terrifyingly vulnerable, is of the equine persuasion. The heat tells of a dragon egg growing inside and, as she speaks to her partner on the phone, the black dragon stares at her from the stables, eyes dark and tail tip flicking from where he is tied on the outside of the barn.

Chapter 5

- Lily grows ever more pregnant at an alarming pace – far more quickly than would be normal for a natural anthro foal in her belly. Her partner becomes devoted to her and spends more and more time in her home, making it difficult for her to spend time alone with her dragons for training. She is still fucked on a regular basis by the black dragon but the others appear to be content with oral for the time being, even the females who enjoy faux matings.
- A client comes to try her dragons for sale – a dealer – but the dragons do not take to him, the females snapping and chasing him away. The males are no better and challenge him with snapping jaws and flared wings, making themselves look larger than they are. The client claims that they are unruly and not suitable for riding, showing, as pets or anything else.
- She distances herself from her lover and turns to her dragons for comfort, presenting herself to the black dragon for mating (he gladly takes her). In his bed, her lover wakes and wonders where she is, roaming the house for her as the black dragon spends his seed and growls, nuzzling the back of Lily's neck. She cries into the straw, holding the dragon close for comfort. She is losing the life and livelihood she loved.

Chapter 6

- It's do or die time. Lily puts on a massive show to raise funds and steels herself to show off her dragons to the best of their ability. They are performing better around other furs now, not harassing them, so she has hope that all will go well. Even her partner is able to handle them, though not the black dragon.
- The show starts successfully and she demonstrates the talents of different dragons in riding, tricks and showing. They behave near enough flawlessly – nothing can be perfect – and she is confident enough to invite a select few guests into the arena, only those that she knows are skilled in dragon dealing with a wealth of experience.
- It all goes horribly wrong and starts by the black dragon, who Lily is trying to keep separate, killing one of the guests with a single snap of his jaws. Other dragons take advantage of other guests, dragging them into the arena and rubbing either a shaft or female sex in the poor guest's face, demanding oral that they do not know to give. The black dragon advances on a guest who screams at Lily, saying how dangerous her dragons are, and pins him down, raping the poor male who is only terrified. Lily has to leave the arena to lay a clutch of eggs while the dragons roar and furies scream, trying to escape their lusts. Only one fur is killed, the one by the black dragon.

Chapter 7

- Lily appears in court and they go through the events of the arena, what happened after the previous scene/chapter cuts off. Lily's belly is flat, having laid the eggs, and the verdict is passed. She is no longer allowed to sell dragons – only train/show – which effectively destroys her livelihood if she cannot make money. Though it is better than being thrown in jail, so she accepts the judgement with a bowed head and sorry soul. There is nothing legally wrong with mating with animals and the main cause for concern is the unruliness of the dragons and the one who killed. As he has a taste for blood, he is sentenced to death and, while Lily is detained at the court, collected to be taken away and put down so she is not able to say goodbye to him. She is heartbroken.
- As she leaves the court, she is harassed by the media and flees to her car, ignoring the questions about her lover, who has long left her in disgust at what she did. She goes home to her eggs and an empty bed, eventually returning to the black dragon's stable to cry herself to sleep. She is glad to still have the other dragons, though she has no idea what she will do for them. Her heart aches for her dragon, the black.

Epilogue

- Lily's eggs hatch into half-equine half-dragon babies of the anthro persuasion. She has already decided what to do with her life and trains her dragons daily in the art of sexual pleasure, teaching them how to perform oral and not only receive. She has received many calls and letters about wanting her dragons sexually and, really, she has no more choice in the matter. She has to survive and provide for her young, who she loves dearly, seeing them as the continuation of her black dragon.
- Though she cannot sell any dragons, she can buy and train. She sells her home and takes her dragons on the road in a convoy, keeping them in line with a stern gaze. Her young ride in a cart drawn by Arthur/Artie and he carries with him a massive tent, from which she will sell the wares of her dragons. If people are willing to pay for the services of her dragons, she will provide in a perverse, travelling pleasure palace.