

The Princess and her Lost Innocence Seeded by her Pet Gryphon

Alis Mitsy

The princess moaned and pushed her hips up to her pet gryphon's tongue, skin quivering with desire. The beast, clad in snowy-white feathers that symbolised a purity he surely did not embody, crooned into her sex, lifting his head to lick her arousal from the edges of his beak. She rolled her head, fingers curling into the dirt as the reeds towered on all sides, the lap and ripple of the lake a musical undercurrent to her introduction to the pleasures of the body. But why had he stopped? Marcela trembled and stretched out a shaky hand to him, rich, fertile soil clinging to her bare palm.

“Please...”

There were no other words that she could impart that could possibly convey to her pet that she wanted him more than she'd ever wanted any of the human suitors her father had presented to her. But Stormchill was no suitor. He was a beast and still knew more of the ways of pleasure than any mere human.

Yet he was a gryphon that knew of his pleasure to. Marcela couldn't have told anyone what he'd been put to in the breeding pens, but the gryphon knew what he had to do, what this strange female was wanting of him. Stepping over her, he keened softly and rocked his hindquarters, slapping his ridged cock up against his own furred stomach.

Marcela didn't think as she clung to his foreleg, pressing her face into the strong, defined limb rippling with muscle. His feathers were silken against her cheek above the join where his feathers melded seamlessly into avian talons and she surprised herself with her own whimper, the tip of his cock slipping against her soaked pussy lips. She didn't have to ask herself if she wanted him: her body did the talking for her.

As Stormchill pushed into his owner's needy pussy, Marcela swallowed her moans, the rustle of the reeds singing sweetly of her deflowering as her pet took her virginity. Stretching out the entrance to her virgin passage, Stormchill huffed shallowly through his 'nares and dipped his head down to hers, his large, round eyes half-lidded as he did what instinct told him to and drove the tapered tip of his cock a little deeper, taking his new hen as he pleased.

Marcela groaned, clenching her jaw as the wind picked up, a cool lick of air across her bare skin.

What was that she'd heard about gryphons getting humans pregnant?

*

Marcela smiled, wafting serenely along the palace promenade with a light spring breeze lifting her curled blonde hair up from the back of her neck. Wisps of gauzy, blue fabric drifted around her body, tucked in at her elbows and knees in the traditional harem style, while solid shapes covered her dignity beneath the meagre covering. While the outfit showed off her form, young and prime for marriage, it retained her modesty in a way that pleased her, her step light in the open-toed sandals that completed her look. Her father often tried to persuade her to wear dresses – something more formal and becoming of a princess – but she turned up her nose at each and every one. What was the point of being a princess if she couldn't even wear what she wanted to?

She took a deep breath, lungs expanding with crisp, fresh air. The sun shone across the palace grounds, the lake twinkling invitingly in the sharp, clear light as spring brought fresh life to a land that had wallowed in winter. It was the season for new beginnings and Marcela couldn't possibly imagine that the warm months ahead could bring anything but good fortune for a princess living a life of leisure.

Her pet gryphon followed at her heels, growling and snapping at any other visitors to the palace who may have otherwise strayed a little too close for comfort, seeking the princess' attention through any means possible. The size of a comfortably formed riding pony, he clicked the tip of his grey beak and pawed at the ground, neck arched as he fanned out his white wings. The smallest flecks of black dotted his feathers sporadically, but could only be seen if the gryphon allowed a curious onlooker into his personal space. Marcela rested her hand on his back, letting his warmth seep into her cool palm. He was a better bodyguard than any human and kept others at a comfortable distance, which was all she wanted on her morning wanders.

Smiling, Marcela clicked her tongue against the roof of her mouth. He turned to look at her, amber eyes sharp and intelligent. What would she ever have done without him? Scratching down his spine, she pursed her lips, seeking out his favourite spot to be groomed and, when she found it, the gryphon crooned dozily and stretched out his whole body, openly begging for more. She giggled.

But the morning was not all to be serene and the princess stiffened, shoulders taut and tipping forward as if to round in a most unladylike way. A gentleman in finely tailored trousers and a crisp shirt open far enough down the chest to show a curl of dark hair strode towards her with confidence in his stride and his hands thrust deep into his pockets. The smile on his lips told a different tale, not reaching far enough to bring spring warmth to his calculating brown eyes.

Marcela reminded herself to breathe.

“Stormchill,” she whispered, calling his attention with his name alone. “Stormchill, stay near.”

The gryphon cocked his head to the side and butted it lightly into her shoulder as if to say that he understood. Puffing himself up, he fluffed up his wings as if he was going to take flight and lunge forward at any moment, attention riveted on the potential threat. To his credit, the man stopped at a safe distance, cheekbones tense even if his lips did not once waver from his perfectly balanced smile.

Spreading his hands out to either side of his torso, chest narrowing down to a tight midsection hard with muscle, the young man chuckled lightly, lips parted and pink in the light breeze. There was not a single hint of wear or work on his hands, moisturised and cared for no doubt by a selection of his many servants. If she had not been in company, Marcela would have rolled her eyes.

“Marcela, what a pleasure to see you out on the promenade this glorious spring day.”

The princess’ lips turned down in the tiniest of frowns.

“Of course. It is always a delight to see you in my palace, Geranto. Though what has brought you out to the promenade? I would have thought you would have taken a selection of your flock hunting on such a day?”

He smiled more widely, Geranto’s fingers tucking themselves into his pockets, but leaving the thumbs protruding over the edge as if he still wanted to keep his hands free.

“No, the deer will see us coming from miles away – there’s no sport in not bringing home a haunch of venison for the table. There’s always a greater pleasure in dining on meat you have slain yourself, is there not?”

Marcela leaned in to Stormchill to hide the shiver running down her spine.

“I would not know, Geranto, as I am not part of your hunts.”

She swallowed hard and forced the words out woodenly.

“I am sure, however, that it is a perfectly pleasant day out.”

There, that would be good enough. Geranto smiled, showing his teeth, and Marcela strove not to shudder away as he looked her up and down, clearly undressing her with his eyes. Her eyes narrowed at the corners. Had he no sense of time and place? As if she would ever allow such a slimy toad of a man to take her hand in marriage regardless!

“That beast of yours would do better out on the hunts than tucked up at your side, princess,” he continued, as if not understanding that he had long overstayed his welcome already. “We need more strong bloodlines running through our flock. I’m surprised the king has not secluded him away to the breeding pens as yet. He truly is wasted up here as a mere pet on a leash.”

As if knowing that he was being spoken about, Stormchill levelled his gaze with Geranto’s, staring the man down until he rubbed his forearm and averted his eyes. Privately, Marcela smirked, running her fingers down the gryphon’s neck and crooning softly to him. Although she knew that he heard her sweet murmurs of praise, the gryphon did not waver from the task at hand of keeping the unwanted male away from the female he had been trained to guard.

Marcela chose not to point out that her gryphon wore no bridle, harness or leash of any manner.

“He has been down to the breeding pens, but I prefer to keep him up here, with me,” she said at last, words short and clipped. “He ensures I am quite safe.”

Gernato laughed, though there was no true mirth ringing through the sound, only a cool, callous bell that had the gryphon shuffling his paws and lashing his tail. Marcela bit the inside of her bottom lip, discreet enough so that no one observing would be able to see her discomfort. Stormchill, however, was well trained enough to pick up on it and let out a low, rumbling growl, feathers plumping up even further.

The man took a step back, eyes suddenly wary when faced with a beast far larger than he.

“Ah, Marcela, my dearest. You are perfectly safe here, I assure you. But, if you feel the need for protection, I will happily take your hand and then you will have no need of a great, big gryphon to look after you on your daily walks. I will take care of that for you and treat you as my princess and my princess alone.”

Now that was too far. Drawing herself up tall, Marcela set her shoulders back, ignoring the wisp of blonde hair that flicked out across her face.

“I believe you have already spoken to my father and we have declined you.”

Hardening her eyes, she put particular emphasis on ‘we’. Geranto’s expression darkened in an instant and he folded his arms, rocking back on his heels as if to launch into another argument. Marcela, however, had heard enough.

“The answer will not change.” She turned, whistling to call Stormchill with her. “It has been a pleasure, as always.”

Turning her back to the man who would have her in his bed, Marcela lengthened her stride and strode down the promenade as if it was what she’d intended to do all the time. A smile perked up her prettily curved lips, but, this time, it was her smile that did not reach her eyes and sweep away the glimmer of sadness behind the grey orbs.

She reached the end of the promenade and turned down past the windows, a narrow staircase taking her down to the grounds of the palace itself. She only had to glance at Stormchill and the gryphon pummelled his wings downwards, taking to the air in a flurry of muscle and a body designed for raw strength. Dropping down the stairs into the shadow and cool brush of grass against her toes, Marcela breathed deeply again, a little of the tension unwinding from her chest. It was easier when she was out of reach of other people.

Yet she was still far too close to the palace centre for comfort. Her feet walked without direction, taking her to the one spot that was hers and hers alone. Well, it was hers as long as she had Stormchill with her and she never let the gryphon leave her side. He even slept with her, keeping a wary watch on the chambermaid who had only become partly accustomed to his presence.

She relaxed into her stride as she made her way to the far side of the lake, following a small, worn path around its edge. On a warmer day, she may have considered taking a small boat out onto the lake to get even further away from unwanted suitors and noisy visitors, but the gryphon circling overhead would have to do for the time being. On the furthest side of the lake from the palace resided a thick bank of reeds, so tall that she could be completely hidden by them even if she stood up to her full height. A tiny spit of land crept out into the lake far enough for the reeds to give the appearance that they encircled a miniscule patch of solitude entirely with their green calmness and lapping water.

It was that spot that Marcela headed for, pushing her way gently through the reeds until she found the soft mound of spring grass that she'd been looking for. The gryphon folded his wings and sped down to join her in a breathtaking dive as she shaded her eyes to better take in his splendour. The sun glinted off his feathers as he plummeted, a sight to behold, and he flared his wings out at the very last moment, blocking out the sun as he landed with a solid thump in front of his owner. Marcela grinned, laughing recklessly as the gryphon nuzzled his neck into her chest.

His thunderous landing had not fazed her in the slightest as she stroked his face and neck, looking into his deeply intelligent eyes. He was the only one who really had the time to understand her.

Grey reality encroached on her moment of rapture and the princess frowned, tugging at her gauzy sleeve as if for something to do. Why couldn't suitors leave her alone? She wasn't even sure she wanted to marry and her father was hardly going to force her!

"Oh, Stormchill," she sighed, flopping down onto the soft grass and folding her arms across her chest. "I don't know what I'm going to do here..."

Some would have thought her silly for speaking so frankly to a gryphon, but Marcela had long ago found he was the best listener and feathered neck to cry into. Stormchill settled himself down on his stomach besides her, folding his wings down the line of his back as he chirped and cocked his head, waiting.

"They seem to come every day now, more and more of them," she continued, breaking off a stem of grass and twirling it between her fingers. "I can't even go out for a walk without them looking at me like I'm a piece of meat. I'm not a prize and they're not anything I want either. All they want is the power and status that would come from marrying me."

The gryphon churred softly and flicked his tail, head bobbing, and Marcela almost smiled.

"Of course, no one would marry me for love that my father would allow either."

Sighing, she leaned back on her palms and watched fluffy white clouds scud across the sky.

"It seems that there is little for me to do here but exist. Eventually, I suppose I shall have to marry for want of some companionship..."

Nipping her shoulder, Stormchill caught her top in the tip of his beak and pulled, ripping a fine tear in the fabric. She squealed and giggled, batting his beak away with her fingers as he bullied his way in and toppled her over onto her back. Pushing his beak up to her face, the gryphon rumbled and purred, pawing at her shoulder as if waiting for something from her. Marcela giggled breathlessly and hugged his head to her, the gryphon submitting to her human expression of love as he had every time before.

"Yes, yes, you're very good company too, Stormchill, I'd never forget about you," she quickly reassured him with a pat on his neck. "But sometimes it's nice to have people who will speak back to me too...you know?"

Stormchill tilted his head to the side and squawked, ear tufts twitching. Marcela sighed and kissed his beak, letting her head lay back on the grass. The reeds swayed around her as the gryphon shifted, grooming her hair with the tip of her beak until she laughed and pushed him away lightly. As her eyes started to close, she thought he'd given up on pestering her until she felt his hard beak touch her leg, grazing the top of her thigh.

"Stormchill?" She murmured sleepily, only half lifting her head from the loam. "What are you doing?"

The beast chirped and blinked, but gave her no discernible answer. Continuing his apparent inspection of her, he pushed his beak between her thighs and up. Marcela froze, breath catching in the lump in her throat. His beak rubbed right up against her sex, pressing her undergarments into the soft folds to a flicker of unexpected pleasure. She took a deep breath, pushing gently on the top of Stormchill's head to get him to move away – she wouldn't have wanted him jerking away when his beak was in such a sensitive spot – and the gryphon, albeit reluctantly obeyed. He didn't go far, however, and let his head hover above her crotch with what she wanted to say was a question in his eyes.

Huffing, Marcela stretched out her arms above her head and let her back bow up from the grass, unable to push that tingle of pleasure from her mind. How long had it been since she'd touched herself there? She shook her head, rolling it from shoulder to shoulder as she groaned. With a chambermaid to attend her every whim, she had not been able to attend to one need of her own with the younger girl watching her constantly and even sleeping in the same bedchamber as her. She snorted. Apparently the chambermaid was there for protection – hah! What a jest! Stormchill was far better protection than that wisp of a girl, allowing her freedom that humans did not.

But she couldn't ignore her own need as a budding woman, far past the age that many eligible nobles would have been married off and having babies. Her first moon cycle had been years ago and she was and truly into the realms of adulthood, yet with no man to sweetly claim her virginity as she refused ever suitor that her father presented to her. Fingers creeping down her stomach, she pressed them up to her folds and sucked in a breath, shocked by the electric tingle of pleasure that shot through her even from that light touch.

Shaking her head, she moaned, throwing the gryphon a glare that was far from convincing. What had he awoken in her? Well, she was going to have to do something about it now.

"Keep watch for me, Stormchill." She glanced around as if she would be able to spot someone peering in at her through the reeds even if there was certainly no one else near. "You've started this, I guess I've got to finish it."

She giggled against her will, pressing her fingers to her lips, eyes wide. Was she really going to masturbate out in the open? Could she really do it? Her body made the decision for her, a hand slipping inside her attire to tease fingertips over her pussy lips. She sucked in a breath. How could she have been so wet already? Marcela groaned, rolling her head back onto the grass, a daisy tickling her ear. It had clearly been far, far too long since she'd had the privacy for self-pleasure.

Wasting no time – it was, of course, of the essence – she flicked the tip of her forefinger over the hidden nub of her clit, squirming under her own touch. How could she have forgotten how good it felt? Her blood sang, cheeks heating up as she explored her own body, taking a nipple between her fingers to squeeze and roll it for an added thrill of sensual delight. She knew her body better than anyone else even from her short sessions of self-pleasure stolen when the chambermaid was taken ill and it didn't take her long at all to drive her need to a throbbing crescendo. Panting and writhing, she drove a finger into her wetness, moaning at the rippling sensation of her passage clenching around even that slender intrusion.

Oh, how she needed it...

To her surprise, however, a hard beak brushed over her thigh, insistently nudging her legs further apart. Marcela whimpered, torn between pleasure and working out just what on earth the gryphon was doing. She batted at his head as he keened softly and dug his beak into the fabric wrap covering her crotch. Before she could take another breath, he yanked it down to her upper thighs, leaving her pussy bare and exposed to his attention but her attire devoid of rips as if he had been especially careful not to destroy it.

Marcela half-shrieked, clapping a hand over her mouth in time to stem the cry. She couldn't have someone coming running to her now – what if someone else was also out for a walk and heard her cry out? No! Whimpering into her palm, she swatted wide-eyed at Stormchill and gulped as his dark tongue snaked out across her thigh, closer and closer to her soaked folds. Of course, she had no chance whatsoever of pushing such a large beast away and concentrated on getting her breath back and quieting the frantic pace of her heart.

Only when she trusted herself not to shriek did the princess tentatively brush her fingers over the gryphon's beak as he lapped, seeking something that she could not understand.

“Stormchill?”

And then all words were stolen from her, Stormchill pushing his beak entirely between her legs to claim the treat he'd sought. Marcela hissed through her teeth as the gryphon's tongue caught in her entrance and dragged slickly up the length of her lips, ending with a swift flick over her clit. She couldn't help her moan and rocked her hips up to him, turning her cheek to the dirt. Her eyes closed and she surrendered to the gryphon's attentions, letting his tongue circle her clit as if he was deliberately trying to give her pleasure. Marcela moaned. He was a smart pet, a loyal pet, the very best pet...

Heat raced down her skin and she scratched at the ticklish gauze draped over her arms, sandals planted into the ground to better position herself for Stormchill's tongue. The gryphon crooned, sliding what seemed to be the full length of his flexible tongue into her cunny, the tip flicking up against that inner barrier inside her and dragging back over a cluster of nerves. Marcela gasped and twisted, holding herself in place the best she could so as not to disturb what her wonderful beast and bodyguard was doing to her. Her head whirled with thoughts that rising ecstasy chased away as soon as they rose, not allowing her to think about the fact that an animal was slurping at her pussy.

But her taste was having an effect on him too. Her heart pounded. Looking down the length of her body and Stormchill's, she watched his fat sheath plump out and a dark spire of a cock drop into view. Layered with ridges running down the length of the breeding pole, it hung imposingly below his stomach, a thick dollop of pre-cum – that was what it was called, right? – gathering at the tip. Marcela gasped and arched up as the gryphon's tongue hit a particularly sensitive spot. She may have been a virgin, but she knew what a male's shaft was and what it was for. She'd heard the maids talk and, as annoying as she may have been, that chambermaid had had some raunchy stories to tell. She knew how it worked, although the mechanics of it had her heart leaping into her throat at the very notion of considering what she wanted to do.

"Stormchill... Stormchill, easy now boy," she murmured breathlessly, trying to ignore the frantic pace of her heart as she nudged his head away. "Good boy, we'll both have what we want here, won't we?"

She couldn't think about, couldn't allow herself to stop and truly consider what she wanted to do. Her skin burned, mind set on one path and one path alone. All those suitors looked at her like she was nothing but a status symbol, yet here was a living, breathing, thriving male that wanted her! And she'd never have to question whether or not Stormchill loved her; his devotion rang through for all to see.

As he pulled back, clacking his beak impatiently, she rolled onto her front, shimmying her dirtied wrap down her thighs as she went. Leaving her with only what she'd wrapped her top half in and the lightly floating gauze down her arms, she pushed herself up on all fours, arms suddenly trembling with the enormity of what she was asking of herself.

Nuzzling her buttocks with his beak, Stormchill crooned and flicked his tail, catching the reeds. Marcela shook like a leaf. Could she really do it? Could she take him? Would she even be able to take him? The chambermaid had spoken of how a woman was able to stretch and even about how she knew of some slaves that were devoted to the sexual care of the gryphons out in the stables, but could she stretch enough for him? She whimpered and rocked her buttocks back as the gryphon stepped over her, taking the decision from her hands. At least, she thought as if to reassure herself, she wouldn't have to worry about doing the work. Stormchill was an experienced enough breeder with hens to do all the work for her.

She took a deep breath, his cock sliding wetly over her rear cheeks. Yes, her sweet Stormchill would take care of her, she was sure of it. He wouldn't let her get hurt.

Hunching his hindquarters down, he rounded his back to come down to her level and tucked his beak down against her cheek, tail flicking as he purred in her ear. She hung on to his head, clenching her jaw and closing her eyes. His cock pressed to her pussy, nudging and questing entrance that she was ready to give. She only had to relax and let him in.

It took Stormchill a few testing thrusts to find her pussy, the tapered head of his shaft slipping over her buttocks and beneath her several times. Marcela's breathing grew laboured and as she was about to try a different position to sate her burning need when the head caught and squeezed into her pussy.

She arched her back, struggling to contain the stretch as he pried her virgin pussy apart for the very first time. Marcela whimpered and clung to Stormchill, her anchor in a storm of emotion, as he fluttered his wings and eased in, seeing her only as a hen in need of breeding. The ridge behind the head of his cock – she shuddered in delight at the crude work, having never thought of a male's member in such explicit terms before – popped into her pussy, sending her mind rolling into fresh waves of pleasure.

But through her rising ecstasy, a niggling thought secluded away at the back of her mind raced to the forefront, demanding attention that she was unwilling to give.

Wait... She pulled herself to reality as he sank in a little deeper. Those slaves that looked after the gryphons... Hadn't the chambermaid told her that there was a chance of them becoming pregnant from the beasts? Something about their magical blood?

Her heart leapt into her throat and she clawed at the dirt, fear closing around her neck like the beak of a gryphon around its hapless, squirming prey. Away! She had to get away! What if he got her pregnant – she didn't want that! If she had an egg from him, she'd be done for!

Yet it was too late for second thoughts as the gryphon snapped at her hair, rolling his hips forward in an almighty thrust that sank half his cock into her. Unable to stop herself, Marcela squealed and bucked, kicking out even as the gryphon claimed her, ripping her virginity from her in a brutal shove. The flicker of pain from her passage being so stretched – her barrier had, no doubt, been broken in that first penetration anyway – proved to be fleeting, however, as he scooted his hindquarters in closer to her and dragged back, popping the ridges out of her cunt.

Eyes rolling back into her skull, Marcela groaned and forgot why she'd even been trying to get away – as if she could escape anyway. All that was left was to enjoy her deflowering by the only male ever to truly care for her outside of her family. The princess gasped breathily and licked her lips, hair stuck to the side of her face as the gryphon rolled his hips and drove more and more of his cock into her, exploring the depths of her pussy with every long stroke. She tried to push back against him, ignoring the stretch and focusing on the pleasure as his ridges teased over her clit outside her pussy as he thrust, sending tingles through her body right down to her fingertips.

Maybe the chambermaid was wrong, she tried to reason with herself as Stormchill drove into her, forcing her body to accept what had to be the full length of his shaft. She didn't know anything – was probably just trying to make her story sound better for the ears of the princess. Yes, that had to be it. Pressing her cheek to the gryphon's leg, Marcela dragged in as much air to her lungs as possible, arching back for the gryphon to use her as he willed.

Something tightened in the pit of her belly, his furry balls tapping her crotch lightly as he thrust, tail lashing the air. Marcela groaned, ducking her head down as her mind whirled. Had she even risen to that peak of pleasure so swiftly? It had taken much longer when she'd been on her own for her need to crest the peak! As it was, there was nothing she could do to stop the pleasure coming, Stormchill squawking noisily and clawing at the ground with his front talons as he bred her, hindquarters working to drive his cock into her quicker and hard, wet slurps of sexual fluids denoting their coupling.

The princess couldn't hold back her shriek as she reached climax, the gryphon hurling her over the cliff edge and leaving her to the crashing waves below. Orgasm rolled over her, flooding her sense with pleasure that could not be restrained even if she'd wanted to temper her ecstasy. Her hips jerked and bucked of their own accord as she writhed, the scent of fresh, new grass in her nostrils and the bulk of the gryphon bearing down above her. Her pussy twitched and rippled around the length of his shaft and she faintly heard him groan as blood roared in her ears: he was close too.

True to form – any animal was quick to climax, surely? – Stormchill let loose a terrifying shriek like that of a wild bird of prey and slammed into her. Marcela gasped, shoved forward by the thrust, and whimpered as he drove the tip of his cock into her inner barrier, thrusting relentlessly as he spent himself inside her. Cum drooled out the sides of his cock and her stretched pussy lips, her small snatch simply unable to contain such a volume of cum, and she hissed softly, wriggling her hips as she relaxed into the sensation of being filled. The gryphon clacked his beak and pawed at the ground, fluffing up his wings and pushing out his chest as if he was proud of what he'd done and wanted everyone to see just what a breeding stud he was.

Breathless, Marcela stayed perfectly still as the last drops of gryphon cum spurted into her pussy, no longer able to call herself an innocent virgin. She wanted to say that she felt no different, but, even in that moment, she pushed her shoulder blades back and set her gaze, lips tugging up in a confident smile that may not have suited her before the fact. Shivering, she looked up at the gryphon, cooing to him and kissing his beak as he dipped his head down for attention, a low purr making his beak vibrate softly. No, there would never have been a better male to take her virginity than the one standing over her with his cock softening in her cunny.

She was now well and truly a woman in all senses of the word.

Marcela glanced back at Stormchill with a fleeting grin, one hand absent-mindedly rubbing her stomach, imagining that she could feel the swell of his cum through the taut skin or maybe even something more. An egg may mean that all of her suitors would leave her alone for good! She sighed and slumped to the grass, buttocks raised to allow her pet and now lover to finish as he pleased, a smile stretching her lips wide as her eyes closed, chin resting on her folded arms. The sun warmed her skin and she murmured sleepily to herself, enjoying the lingering ache of her well-bred pussy as Stormchill finally pulled out, a deluge of cum pouring down her thighs to seep into the grass.

Marcela didn't think she'd be wanting after human company again anytime soon.